COVID still had us shut down to audiences in our space as we began our 38th Season. We were forced to get creative and truly think outside the box to find ways to program.

Our team moved Almost Heaven outside to Hudson Gardens in August of 2020 and performed for over 1,500 patrons in a safe, distanced, outdoor environment. The entire staff pulled together to make this show happen during the cancelled COVID summer.

Concerts, and Re-Imagining Theatre during Covid

During the remainder of 2020, we continued to re-invent and re-imagine what we could do as a theatre. Live and in-person audiences were still yet to come back, so we constantly asked ourselves what can we do?

We continued on with filmed concerts, and streaming productions. Over the season we actually produced more content than anyone ever expected. As people were allowed into our building in small masked groups we performed in our bubble which kept the audience separate from our actors.

Those performers were all testing regularly and following all safety protocols. We had no Covid instances.

Town Hall Arts Center Education Programming

Town Hall's Educational Program was challenged over and over during 2020. We were only able to have small classes of 10 students at a time and create a simple musical that was filmed with no audience. By July of 2021 we were able to host kids camps at our regular capacity. The kids in our program were excited to be here no matter what restrictions we had to endure.

We still offered on-line and virtual classes for those not ready to come back in person.

The fall classes found more in-person kids classes, but an additional shutdown had us pull back to virtual. Still we finished all their productions on line and were able to offer them to a wider at home audience. We even produced a virtual Christmas Carol that had a cast of a dozen kids and was watched by a live audience of close to 100 people.

We still managed to serve over 3000 kids through live, filmed, and virtual outreach. This included students, audience, and virtual audiences.
